COLIN MCCULLOGH
OPERATIONS MANAGER HEALTHCARE

Colin is one of our most experienced healthcare team members having worked across a huge cross section of our NHS and live hospital site projects. Having joined McLaughlin & Harvey 26 years ago, Colin has spent his entire career in the company.

In his time as senior manager of the healthcare team, Colin has overseen several of our complex, live site projects, including leading the on-site team as they completed the redevelopment of the Chelsea and Westminster critical care unit despite pressures arising from the Covid lockdown. As part of this project, Colin and his team had to demonstrate agility, overhauling working patterns without impacting on delivery dates for a much-needed unit as the Trust was placed under unprecedented pressure.

Colin says: "I find healthcare to be such a rewarding sector to work in; it's so different to any other sector and whatever the project, we must always ensure our approach has a patient-first ethos.

"A live hospital environment brings its own unique challenges. We've all needed the support of the of the NHS at some point in our lives and we recognise it's essential that our work doesn't make what is often the most challenging time of patient's lives any more difficult.

"Speaking directly to the clinicians that are ultimately going to use the spaces we're working in and understanding the impact it will have on their working lives and on patient experience is something that we just can't get from other sectors."
